

Valero Renewables Provides Flood Relief to Iowa Communities

July 2024

Following the devastating flood in Iowa, Valero Renewables—Albert City and Hartley—quickly mobilized resources to support its employees and the community's recovery efforts. Valero Renewables provided crucial relief and hope to families in need, demonstrating Valero's caring culture at a time when support is needed the most.

Valero's relief efforts were extensive, including distributing thousands of water cases and assembling cleaning kits for families in Everly, Hartley, Spencer, Rock Valley, Sioux Rapids, Sutherland, and May City. They also provided meals for City of Hartley employees and distributed snacks and water to hundreds of relief workers in other areas. In addition to community support, Valero assisted employees in cleaning up their flood-damaged homes, demonstrating their commitment to helping all those affected.

Looking ahead, Valero is committed to continuing to provide support that will help Iowa families with their long-term recovery and rebuilding.
